No. The payout percentage is simply the percentage of money that's handed back to the players in a specified period. So, if a site has a payout percentage of 96%, that means that for every £100 taken in, the site pays out £96. Payout percentages don't take into account what actually makes it into players' hands.

This short video gives you a few tips and pointers to make the withdrawal process go as smoothly as possible. Keep these things in mind when requesting your first payout.

How to apply in online casino

Although PayPal is not available to all casino players, for those who do have access, it is without doubt one of the fastest forms of withdrawals and deposits. The money will show up in your PayPal account immediately. From there you can transfer your funds to your bank (which can take a couple days).

This will depend on the restrictions placed on your specific deposit method. Not all casinos offer withdrawals back to the same method, however this is something we recommend clarifying with their customer support before deciding which deposit method to use.

Look for casinos that are licensed, offer customer care preferably in German, have a great selection of slots and table games and offer a wide variety of quick deposit and withdrawal options.
