Later, it became clear that the player never indicated his personal details in the newly created accounts until after depositing and playing from the accounts, and thus, intentionally never revealed his identity. In one of the accounts, the player managed to win, however, the winnings were confiscated due to the player's breach of the Terms and Conditions. After considering all relevant facts, including the player's breach of the Terms and Conditions by creating multiple accounts as well as the fact that we believe that no errors were made honoring the player's self-exclusion on the casino's side, this case was closed in favor of the casino.
