The first mention of gambling in the Philippines dates back to the 1500s. In the 1800s, lotteries were already established, and betting on horse races was also popular. By the way, casinos had already been founded in the Philippines by this time. In connection with the spread of gambling among the population, the authorities then began to stifle such activities. Another common game was cockfighting, on which people also bet. Their popularity was due to their availability, because each village had its fighting sites, and roosters were raised by many farmers. At the beginning of the 20th century, the authorities still legalized the sphere of gambling. And since those years, different types of games have spread and multiplied in the Philippines. At the end of the 20th (1977) century, the large successful Filipino company PAGCOR founded its first gambling establishment in the country. It was the Manila Bay Water Casino.

Analysis of the leading online casinos in the Philippines led to the conclusion that this country had ambitious plans and expectations in the field of internet gambling. The expected Westside City Resorts World (formally Resorts World Bayshore) is expected to be launched in 2021, which will perfectly complement the number of merged resorts previously opened in Entertainment City, thus aiming to build a compact casino center that will be located on a small territory with the aim of possible future attraction of tourists from different countries of the world (such as China, many Asian countries and others).

It should be said about the fact that the profit from gambling entertainment in the Philippines has increased markedly in recent years. Let's show this with statistics. For example, the successful Philippine company PAGCOR provided the following figures: revenue in 2018 was 67.85 billion pesos, and the next year it has already grown by 11.6% to 75.8 billion pesos. However, this promising trend ended in 2020, and for that year was less than 777.4 million pesos in revenue within the first annual quarter, a 49.9% decrease in profit, PAGCOR says. Such a jump is associated with the closure of gambling establishments to prevent the widespread pandemic associated with the COVID-19 virus. Unfortunately, land-based casinos have not yet opened, so revenue is likely to continue to decline in the second quarter of the year.

Making any prediction about the future of the Philippines in the field of gambling does not seem realistic until the gambling establishments resume their work.
