First and foremost, we'll say a few words about the online gambling legislation in Spain. Spain is characterized by a rather relaxed attitude towards online gambling. The Spanish lawmakers made their first firm steps towards the regulation of online gambling in 2002. In 2011, the Spanish Gambling Act (Ley 13/2011, de 27 de mayo, de regulación del Juego) was passed which ultimately formed a solid framework for licensing online gambling operators.

In the situation with the current non-stop growth of the global online gambling market, regulating the local market and ie. generating tax revenue from the industry is the best choice for each country's government. In other words, Spain is a great example of a country where online gambling is legal, safe, and economically beneficial. Now, let's switch to the topic of the most popular types of online gaming venues in Spain.

Some people turn to alternative payment methods because they're not comfortable directly making payments with their credit cards or bank accounts over the Internet, or don't have those options available to them. But for others, any online payment at all feels awkward: perhaps they just don't trust the security of web-based gateways, or they do all of their banking in cash, making it impossible to directly make online purchases.

Thankfully, there are workarounds even for what might seem like a basic impediment to making deposits at online casinos. Services like Teleingreso are designed to allow payments to be made in person, but still have them apply to an online gambling site. Secure and perfect for those who want to use cash to fund their casino account, this is definitely a method you'll want to consider if you live in Spain.

Because of its versatility in the country, this is a method accepted at many Spanish-facing gaming sites. Of those, our experts have picked up just a handful that we think are the best for our readers. These particular casinos feature a variety of benefits, including:

Teleingreso is the creation of a Spanish multinational company known as Telepay SL. Based out of Madrid, the company has made its name by creating a wide variety of secure payment solutions both for customers who have banking services, and for those who prefer to use cash. By making partnerships with top level partners in both Europe and Latin America, the company has been able to create a number of different services in a variety of countries, including this particular method, which is available throughout Spain.

In order to use this method, no special registrations are needed. Instead, all you'll need to do is sign up at a casino that accepts Teleingreso as a deposit option. Once you've done this, you're pretty much ready to go.

You'll want to visit the deposit options section in the cashier at the site you've chosen. At this point, you'll be able to select this as your method of choice. Allow the casino to know how much it is you want to transfer, and submit your request.

At this point, you'll be presented with a 9-digit Teleingreso code. You'll need this to ultimately process your payment. In order to finish up the process, you'll need to go to one of the pay points located throughout Spain in order to complete your deposit. The most common location is at an ATM, with thousands in the country being able to accept cash or credit card payments. About 2,000 post offices and another 300 retail outlets in Spain can also accept these payments.

After you've made the transfer at one of these locations, you can then log back into your casino account. The money should have already arrived, and is now available for play on the website.

Teleingreso is not the perfect payment option for everyone, but there are some customers who are likely to swear by it. The fact that it allows for deposits to be made entirely offline is a huge plus for many users who are either incapable or uncomfortable sharing the details of their bank accounts or credit cards online. This allows for transactions entirely made in cash; whether a user actually pays with paper money or uses a credit card, this method is also entirely secure.

However, there is one obvious downside: this is an option that takes some time to process. Unlike most payment gateways, which allow for instantaneous transfer of funds, players are required to go to a retail outlet in order to finish the process. That means it could potentially take hours rather than seconds to get started; however, if that isn't much of a problem for you, then this is an excellent way to get money into an Internet gambling account.

This option is specifically offered in the Spanish market. It is not available in any other countries or locations.

No registration is required. Anyone can choose to receive a payment number, and can then visit any participating location in order to complete the transaction.

Unfortunately, this option is not available for withdrawals. If you wish to cash out, you'll need to make alternate arrangements, such as asking for a wire transfer, a mailed check, or setting up an e-wallet account.

Teleingreso is a Spanish payment service that allows consumers to buy goods online and then pay for them in person at an affiliated outlet. It is featured as part of the international Alternative Payments network that includes popular services such as iDEAL and Sofort.

The payment method covers a wide range of internet stores, from retail to gaming sites. Online casinos fall into the second category, and many of them allow you to make a deposit using Teleingreso. This page will show you how to find the top Teleingreso casinos, how to make a deposit in them, and the bonuses offered by these sites. You'll also read information about the company behind Teleingreso and the pros and cons of using the service.

Teleingreso is a registered trademark of Esgiro S.L., a Spanish company that was formed around 2010 to provide payment solutions in the European Union and Latin America.

With online shopping becoming increasingly popular, a gap in the market became clear. Many people who shopped online didn't feel comfortable sharing sensitive banking information with merchants they didn't know, especially after numerous stories of fraudulent activity. What's more, some consumers didn't have a bank account, so buying things online was impossible for them.

That's where solutions like Teleingreso came in. The concept was simple – customers shopped online as usual but, instead of entering their card details at the point of purchase, they received a nine-digit Tele-entry code instead. They would then take this to the nearest Teleingreso outlet, which could be an ATM or shop, although ATMs only accept card payments.

Teleingreso online casino

Today, thousands of Teleingreso outlets are located throughout Spain. Major banks Abanca and Cajamar provide access via their ATMs, while Disashop accepts the method in its stores where customers can pay with card or cash.

There are also several affiliated networks in several other countries, especially in Latin America, as this simple yet effective solution continues to be popular among customers.

Teleingreso's main selling point is its security, and it's easy to see why. You don't need to register or share any personal or banking data, you just get your code and pay at the outlet of your choice. You have full control of the entire process – a big plus point for people cautious about buying items online.

It's also extremely accessible for people who otherwise wouldn't have access to online payments – this may include elderly people or customers who choose not to have a bank account. It's extremely simple to use and there are no limits to the number of times you can buy something via Teleingreso.

Another positive is that the service is free to use. Teleingreso earn their money from merchants and don't require anything from the customer. This gives it an advantage over some digital payment methods that charge consumers for using the service.

However, it's not all good news. Teleingreso is a lot slower than many other online methods which offer instant payments. Getting a code, going to the nearest outlet and processing the order may take a few hours and will obviously mean you get access to your good or service later.

Casino online teleingreso

Also, while several affiliated payment methods are available in countries across the world, Teleingreso is only available in Spain, so you'll either have to live there or be travelling through there to use it.

Making a Teleingreso casino deposit is simple and works the same as any other payment using this method.

Teleingreso casino online

You'll need to have an active account with the Teleingreso casino of your choice and go to the site's cashier. There, you'll need to select Teleingreso as your payment method and enter the amount of money you wish to deposit. You'll then receive a nine-digit code, which you can either screenshot or note down on your phone or a piece of paper.

Then, you'll need to find your nearest Teleingreso pay point, which is either a shop or ATM. Once there, you just pay the amount with card or cash and the transaction is logged onto the Teleingreso system.

Teleingreso casino online

The money shouldn't take long to arrive in your casino account, maybe an hour or so. If it takes much longer, then it's a good idea to get in touch with your casino to check that everything is OK.

It's impossible to make withdrawals via Teleingreso as there obviously isn't an account for it to arrive to. Also, affiliated shops and ATMs cannot dispense money this way.

To find bonuses offered by Teleingreso casinos, you can go to our list of casino bonuses and choose 'Teleingreso' in the payment provider filter there. While there, you can narrow the bonuses down according to their type – just go to the 'Bonus Type' filter and select the one you'd like to see. Click the 'No Deposit Bonus' box to see just those, for example, or you can go to the list of no deposit bonuses and select the 'Teleingreso' box there.

All bonuses that you see should be relevant as of the date of your search as Casino Guru works hard to keep them up-to-date.
