Club Player Casino is one of those casino sites which tries to capture the excitement and mood of a night in Vegas, with dark nighttime colours and a little bit of gold thrown into the mix. What it doesn't try to do is overwhelm you with a thousand slot titles and offers, which is something a few of their competitors could learn from. Front and centre of the page we see the welcome offer at Club Player which is a 450% sign-up bonus. As always be assured that there are conditions to meeting this, but we'll examine the opaque details later. Beneath the banner with the promotional signup offer there lies a few options including instant play, premium play and toll free chat. Scrolling further down a list of some of the slots titles available are on display with this taking up a maximum of 10 titles in a 5x2 configuration. It is enough to give you a flavour for what the site offers without swamping you. Instant play indicates the fact that no download is required to join in the games at Club Player, although they do have software you can elect to download.

Club Player is owned and operated by Virtual Casino Group who operate out of Costa Rica. Other casinos operated by the group include Wild Vegas Casino, Palace of Chance Casino, Prism Casino, Cool Cat Casino, Slots of Vegas Casino, Cirrus Casino and VIP Lounge Casino.

They offer a fully-downloadable casino as well as an instant casino with the assistance of game developer RTG. Although Virtual Casino Group have courted controversy in the past with slow payments being an issue, the company has made significant moves to repair their reputation and resolve outstanding issues.

The company offers a great deal of slots as well as casino games with slots titles including Mice Dice, Bubble Bubble 2, Jazz Time, Mayan Queen, Medal Tally, Enchanted Garden II and Regal Riches. A few of their most popular titles are Dragon Orb, High Fashion and Nova 7s. Here the heavy lifting is primarily performed by the ever reliable and slightly ubiquitous Realtime gaming. At least the quality, if not the originality of the titles on offer is guaranteed. It is also possible to filter the slots by criterion including most popular, biggest jackpots, new games, online slots, 21 games, roulette and video poker. It certainly makes finding your favourite games a lot simpler.

As with many online casinos, Club Player has its own signup offer which in this case is a 450% welcome bonus. Frustratingly Club Player does not see fit to further expand on this bonus or the terms and conditions under which this bonus is applied. It is made clear that this bonus is subject to a 30x wagering rule which rises to 60x for table games and video poker.

It is also subject to a 10x limit on withdrawals with the bonus amount itself not being cashable and withdrawn from the requested withdrawal. What it does not state is the maximum amount you can claim with the 450% bonus or whether this amount must be made in a single deposit or can be stretched across multiple deposits. All in all, it isn't a very clear offer.

Club Player is another site which likes to offer daily offers to its customers but frustratingly it only displays the current daily offer in the offers page. Experienced punters may be confounded by this lack of up front clarity about each of the daily offers. When you're shopping around for a new online casino these details can make the difference.

Club Player has some specific and unique rules regarding the deposit and withdrawal of money, so is well worth your while establishing exactly what these are. If you are a new customer and you wish to process transactions using your credit card you must complete a credit card agreement form. The accounts department at the casino will not process withdrawals for any customer without this completed form.

Presumably with a view to reassure punters, the company promises to examine any cases where a credit card is charged mistakenly or without the permission of the card holder. Club Player say that credit card payment errors can happen anytime, which a lot less comforting than they seem to think it is. If errors happened rarely if ever that would be a lot better. In any case the company accepts the following payment methods: Visa, Mastercard, Neteller and Bitcoin.

When it comes to withdrawals, it is possible to take money out using a cash deposit, Neteller, cheque, Click2Pay or Wire Transfer. The site states that different methods of payment have different withdrawal fees attached to them but doesn't go into the exact details of what these withdrawal fees are. Again, this is another area of the site where transparency could be improved. It is disappointing to see that with all the competition online casinos have right now that some of them are still unable to offer precise and clear cut details on exactly what their payment fees and withdrawal times are.

Club Player allows gamblers to withdraw a maximum of $2,000 a week, but VIP players can withdraw more. The site finally says they're unable to give exact dates when payments will be made due to issues in the online gambling community. It is unclear exactly what this meant by this statement or what the issues are and so this puzzling assertion only serves to further confuse, baffle and worry.

Club Player is a very nice looking online casino supported by the excellent titles that Realtime Gaming have to offer. First impressions of Club Player are very positive and the 450% signup bonus certainly looks appealing, but on closer inspection it is difficult to completely ascertain what this offer is or what it entails. That confusion manifests itself again in several areas of the site, and although these mistakes may be the product of oversight rather than of a genuine intention to mislead it doesn't boost confidence for punters who are looking to shop around for a new casino.

The problem rears its head once more on the banking page with oblique references to problems in the gambling industry and a reluctance of the firm to give specifics about when cashouts will be paid helping to further eroding trust. The Virtual Casino group are a company who have made recent efforts to improve customer service and payout speeds but the coyness of Club Player doesn't bolster that confidence and instead undermines it. For this reason only it is hard to truly recommend Club Player at this moment in time.
