The player's winnings were deducted during his account check. The casino explained that the account was blocked due to a violation of a term regarding duplicating bets on the same event. The casino also stated that it has changed its approach in these types of cases, and the player's account was unblocked after explaining the violation. The casino then processed the player's outstanding withdrawal and the matter was resolved.

The casino allowed the player from Ukraine to register, despite the fact that Ukraine was a restricted country. The player won and requested a withdrawal but was refused to be paid out due to being a Ukrainian. The player requested at least his deposits to be returned, as the casino should have not accepted them in the first place. The casino was willing to return only his latest deposit which was just a fraction of the total sum he had deposited.
