Online slot tips and tactics abound, but which ones are worthwhile? We have developed the top online slot secrets that online casinos don't want you to know thanks to our experience. If you want to play slots online then you must be well versed with these strategies mentioned below:

Slot machines allow players to choose how much they wager per-spin. Not only can you choose your denomination, you can also choose how many units of that denomination to wager on each spin of the reels.

These emails and letters will include coupons for cheap stays, free meals, or even free betting cash, depending on "how loyal you are," read: how much money you handed over on your last trip.

There is no one method that is superior to others for playing online slots; every player can have their strategy. Use the above mentioned list of advice and play slots frequently to develop your strategy for slots. The more you play, the more experience you gain, and the faster you learn what works best.

If you're into slots for entertainment, you better have a big bankroll. The games with the most entertainment value (audio clips, video clips, bonus games, progressive jackpots, etc.) are also the ones with the longest odds, and to make things worse, they also tend to have high per-spin costs.

For starters, you can exchange casino club card points for cash at most casinos, but only once you've accrued a certain number of points. Most clubs offer $20 per 2,000 points or something like that.

This trick is designed to help you extend your bankroll. We've noticed that newcomers to casino and especially to slot gambling often have no idea how to pick a machine. They gravitate towards $1 slots, because that's a nice round number they can understand.

The moment you place your money into a slot, you're leaving the results in the fickle hands of Lady Luck. And while this mercurial entity may sometimes smile on players, she can also be a harsh mistress who sometimes delights in draining bank accounts and ruining lives. Now that I think of it, Lady Luck is actually kind of a jerk.

There's No Correlation between Time and a Winning Slot – Another common misconception is that slots are more likely to pay out at certain times of the day or during special events. The RNG is totally oblivious to whether it's noon, midnight, Wednesday, or the day of a lunar eclipse. It just goes about its business as always, which is what you should be doing instead of falling for folklore and old wives' tales.

Avoid Big Progressive Jackpots – Games with massive progressive jackpots (Wheel of Fortune, for example) tend to have worse odds than machines with lower payouts. If you want to be smart, stay away from the monster progressives no matter how tempting they seem. Even though a winning spin could allow you to retire, the most likely outcome is a quick drain on your finances.

Those points really add up, and if you're playing high-dollar games or making large per-spin bets, you'll be surprised how much free cash you can earn. And cash is the easiest prize to redeem—accepted everywhere, recognized by all.

If you're sick of losing to the house over and over on the same old slot machines, consider one of these four casino classics:

Don't Get Drunk – People who drink and gamble often lose control of their senses and make stupid decisions. This can have disastrous results, so always try to keep a clear head during a session.

We've distilled the best slot machine strategy advice available online into the following three basic tips. Follow these tips, along with the bankroll management tips in the above section, and you'll be putting yourself in the best position to lose less often and hold onto a bit more of your cash.

Casino Slots Don't Cheat – When a player loses or even fails to win big, there's often a tendency to accuse the casino of cheating. This is especially true of slots, and the solitary nature of the game allows players to sit alone and grumble about their misfortune.

That's because slot machines are designed to return less money than they take in. In other words, they guarantee a profit, and nothing you can do as a player affects that design in any meaningful way.

Location of a Slot Machine – Players at land-based casinos frequently buy into the mistaken notion that the most profitable slots are placed near casinos doors and intersections in order to attract additional business. First of all, slots are placed randomly on the casino floor. Secondly, a casino doesn't need to resort to such tactics to lure in extra business. As the disembodied voice said in Field of Dreams, "If you build it, they will come."

While certain symbols are weighted to show up more often than others, the combinations are entirely random and cannot be predicted by the human brain. Each spin is also independent of all others, which means slots never get hot or cold. If a game paid out a massive jackpot five minutes ago to a lucky player, you can take over the machine and enjoy the same (if unlikely) mathematical chance of hitting the jackpot.

There's one thing we don't like about slot machines that we wanted to get out in the open right away. The worst thing about slot machines, from the perspective of a player interested in strategy.

However, not many people walk into a slot session ready to play at $1-per-credit games, and a lot of these players watch their bankrolls evaporate.

The truth of the matter is that most slots are programmed to pay back anywhere from 87% to 97% of the money put into them. Even a low-paying slot should be around 85%, and it should also be reassuring to know that most gambling bodies have a minimum requirement to prevent casinos from setting their machines to some ridiculously low number.

A roulette wheel has 38 positions where the ball might end up. We can figure out the odds of any single number (or feature of a number) coming up, because we know the overall odds of any number appearing.

How to play in the casino machines

Without a doubt, the best slots strategy is simply to avoid slot machines in favor of other casino games. Slots are one of the worst bets when it comes to odds, and the fact that the payback percentage is usually kept secret doesn't help matters.

This isn't the best strategy, however. You'll usually lose less than 1% of the possible return by playing the smallest amount of the highest denomination, while moving down to a lesser denomination will wind up costing you more than 1%.

If you want to have a bit of fun and take a shot at winning a huge jackpot, then there's nothing wrong with spending a few bucks on slots from time to time. Just keep the right state of mind, focus on having fun, and view any winnings as a nice bonus to supplement your session.

Slots are the great casino mainstay. Gamblers all over the world gravitate towards slot machines, at a greater rate than any other game on the floor. Slot machines are the backbone of the gambling business, often keeping casino operators in the black single-handedly.

You might feel that this is not an important point but choosing the games from a reputable provider is a must. Slot games from different providers can have quite different levels of quality, much like there is a distinction between Nike and Reebok shoes.

Endless reams of paper have been wasted printing books that promise can't-lose slot machine tactics.

If you want to walk away a winner, the best thing you can do is manage your money. In order to help you do so, here are some practical tips to remember during your next gaming session:

It can be tough to stick to win and loss limits. The desire to keep gambling, or to gamble and make up for losses, can be a powerful thing. If it helps, you can recruit a friend to help you stick to your win and loss limit commitments.

Take Advantage of Comps – If you're a regular player at land-based casinos, it's common to receive comps from the casino in order to ensure your continued patronage. Always look to take advantage of these perks, as free hotel accommodations or meals can turn an otherwise losing trip into a profitable one. Just make sure that your player's club card (issued for free by the casino) is always inserted into the machine, as this allows the establishment to monitor playing sessions and ensure that you'll be awarded for frequent business.

Mini-baccarat is cheaper than slots, but it still moves at a quick pace. Mini-baccarat is simple, a bit more complex than slot machines, but easy enough to learn in a few minutes. That's because the game offers just three bets. As an added bonus, two of those three bets offer really short odds.

We've already talked about how slot machines max out at a house edge of about 95% – these are usually the most boring games on the floor, with the least replay value and very little in the way of options.

One of the most ridiculous examples is the "Zig Zag" system, so called because the player is asked to zig zag across the casino floor looking for slots where the last position of the reels is just short of a winning combination. The supposed logic is that if the machine nearly hit a payout, then those symbols are due to line up soon and deliver a win.

Play Off the Strip – If you're fond of playing at brick-and-mortar casinos, I suggest giving your business to the more out-of-the-way establishments. They're likely to offer better payouts, as they need to do so to help siphon away customers from their better situated competitors.

If you have a sizable amount of money to blow on slots and you want the latest and greatest in slot entertainment, a high-denomination game is probably just right.

Without information about a slot machine's house edge, things like bankroll management and game strategy get tricky. Slot machine strategy is thus more of an art than a science. Have no fear, though – it's an art that we've studied and participated in for decades.

Unfortunately, these progressive prizes also draw in gamblers who have no business playing long-odds contests with huge risk, like progressive games. If you're looking to make your bankroll last as long as possible, never place a single bet on any progressive machine.

You should always join the slots club, player's club, rewards club, loyalty club, or any other club that a casino is offering. It won't cost you anything, it's easy to use (you just swipe it in the slot you want to play before you start), and it's literally the only way that a casino can track and reward slot players.
